Dear Member,

Preparation of the 1969 edition of the "who's who" type of AEA HANDBOOK scheduled for publication late this fall, is now under way. Like the 1964 edition, the new HANDBOOK will feature biographical listings of AEA members. Because of the tremendous job of compilation involved we request your immediate cooperation in filling out and returning the enclosed personal data questionnaire. Any member whose biographical write-up appeared in the 1964 HANDBOOK will find it reproduced in the enclosed questionnaire and is asked simply to check the information for accuracy before completing the form. All others have been sent new questionnaires to be completed. Since the HANDBOOK is published as an extra number of the AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW and distributed to members without extra charge, expensive follow-ups of those who fail to return their questionnaire promptly cannot be made.

In addition to biographical data on members, the 1969 HANDBOOK will include a geographical index of both members and subscribers, classified indexes of members, listed by fields of specialization and academic affiliation, as well as several sections containing information of general interest to members of the economics profession.

To make this volume available and useful to members of the profession, may we suggest that members urge their colleagues, students and others with relevant professional interests to apply for membership in the Association in time to be included in the 1969 HANDBOOK. This means any new membership applications must be received in this office by May 15.

Again, may we urge you to fill out and return the questionnaire promptly.

Sincerely yours,

Harold F. Williamson
